THE THEATRES

SMITH'S

This evening, the attraction will be the big Cohan and Harris Minstrels, an organization consisting of nearly a hundred people, and headed by one of America's most popular burnt-cork comedians, "Honey Boy" George Evans. All the traditions of minstrelsy Mr. Cohan is said to have retained in his entertainment, but he has succeeded in giving it a new fame and brightness up the dusty spots, so that as now presented, by this company, minstrelsy is as fresh and entertaining as many musical shows Cohan and Harris have sent forth.

Frank Bixby, who plays the role of a printer with Henry E. Dixey in the big comedy drama success, "Mary Jane's Pa," became an actor under rather peculiar circumstances. Mr. Bixby, who was a stage mechanic in the employ of Henry W. Savage, was sent to Springfield, Mass., last summer, as a member of Mr. Savage's working staff, when "Mary Jane's Pa" was tried out in that city by a stock company under the title "I Take This Man." The organization was not big enough to supply the numerous players required for the piece, so several additional actors were engaged, among whom was one for the printer's part. Unfortunately this man was unable to appear because of sudden illness. Mr. Bixby was familiar with the lines and volunteered to jump in and save the performance. His services were accepted and he scored such an exceptional success in the homely character that Mr. Savage proffered Mr. Bixby a contract to become an actor at triple the salary he had received as a stage mechanic. Needless to remark, he accepted. When "Mary Jane's Pa" opened in New York, Mr. Bixby duplicated the success he had achieved at Springfield and is now a full fledged actor. With Mr. Dixey and the entire original cast and production, "Mary Jane's Pa" will be seen here to-morrow evening.

Thursday afternoon and evening, with the usual hours from 1:30 to 5, and 7 to 10:30, there will be another feast of those magnificent animated picture plays and illustrated songs. A large delegation from the A. B. C. club will give Mr. Greenup an encouragement in his songs, and who will join with him in the choruses. It is a great big show for very nearly next to nothing, and no one can really afford to miss it.

Arrangements with Charles Frohman for the presentation here of Clyde Fitch's newest comedy, "The Happy Marriage," prior to its production in New York, will bring that great Boston success here Friday night, with the same company, which made its two weeks' season at the Hollis Street theatre in Boston, one of the most successful of the year. The company is headed by Miss Doris Keane, that brilliant young actress whose performance in "The Hypocrites" stamped her as an artist of unusual power and charm. Playing opposite to Miss Keane will be found Edwin Arden, one of America's popular leading men.

George M. Cohan's "The American Idea," a 1909 musical frivolity which has had long runs in New York, Boston and Chicago, comes Saturday afternoon and evening. In "The American Idea," Mr. Cohan asserts that his genius is shown at its fastest and in its greatest variety. George Heban is a feature of the cast. He is assisted by Trilke Briganza, Robert L. Dalley, and others.

POLI'S

Red haired Irene Franklin, the "Queen of Vaudeville" by popular vote is the great star feature of this week's bill at Poli's offering her original series of songs and comedies. Miss Franklin's offering of her famous song hit "Red Head" is winning her a distinguished popularity with Bridgeport vaudeville patrons. She bids fair to rival any headline offering here this season. Besides her "Red Head" song Miss Franklin sings "Expression" one of her most original pieces, accompanied by series of "imitations" facial expressions. She also has several other clever songs and character and costume changes. That her laurels gained when she was crowned queen of vaudeville in New York over Eva Tanguay, Alice Lloyd and other vaudeville stars will not be withered in Bridgeport is demonstrated by the hearty and cordial reception being given the red-haired vivacious little comedienne each performance at Poli's.

Rose Wilbur and Zella Covington, presenting their original novelty, "For Her Sister's Honor," a play by two great added feature of this week. Mr. Covington and Miss Wilbur present accurate portrayals of seven different characters running through the action of a one-act drama that is as full of plot as many a four-act play of to-day. Madame Caselli's wonderfully trained Chihuahua dog, the smallest performing canines in the world are attracting widespread attention. Carson & Willard, in their laughable skit, "The Dutch in Egypt" are big mirth-makers. Steeley & Edwards, presenting a series of funny talk and good music; Patsy Doyle, an entertaining monologist; the Taven Trio with a great equilibrist act; and the newest in motion pictures on the Electrophonograph finish out a corking show this week.

DEAD MAN FOUND IN ROAD.

Torrington, March 9.—The body of a dead man, too badly decomposed to be identified, was found on the Torrington road last night. It was frozen so fast and the ground that it had to be chopped free. It is probably the body of a colored man.

Anatomik Shoes.

There will be a demonstration of Anatomik footwear at Mollan's shoe store, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. At this time all persons troubled with flat feet, falling arches or having pains and aches in their feet and limbs which are sometimes relieved by causing a rough massage, are invited to attend this demonstration, conducted by Dr. French, representing the Anatomik Footwear Company. There are so many ailments arising from the improper fitting of feet during childhood that can be remedied by the proper kind of shoes worn, that were they enumerated here very few people would believe it. Such, however, is a fact and there is a shoe to relieve at least 99 per cent. of such troubles. These shoes are to be seen at W. K. Mollan's, 1026 Main street, he being the agent in this vicinity. Many people in Bridgeport are wearing them and can attest to their merits.
